

144,000: 20 – A Robe of Righteous Healing

Upon awakening on Easter, April 12th, I felt enveloped in an aura of balance, harmony, unity and peace. I was in the Green Garden of Grace. Previously, I had been led to, and pictured myself in, this green space and consciousness. Now, the resurrected Garden of Eden was here on Earth and I was in it and it was in me. As above, so below. As within, so without.

During our staff Easter meditation, after giving heartfelt thanks for my green rebirth to my inner plane guides and teachers, I was taken up in the spirit before them. It felt like a graduation ceremony, wherein they pronounced and then presented me as a healer for the Hierarchy (the spiritual governing body for this solar system). Humbled and honored, I had no doubt whatsoever that I was just an ordinary man through whom Spirit did seemingly extraordinary but spiritually simple healings. Moreover, if they so chose, others easily could follow in my footsteps. In fact, we need at least 144,000 healers to heal all of humanity on Earth.

Then, the masters placed a green robe around my shoulders, which hung to the floor. After getting comfortable within its healing power, which was like that of the Green Garden of Grace, Spirit prompted me with my right arm and hand to open the robe at my neck and to wrap it around someone before me, which enclosed both of us in its healing vibrations. Inside the haven of the green robe, at-one with the person before me, in I Am consciousness I judged wisely, rightly, justly and lovingly. My seven major endocrine glands were like judgment sensors, which picked up the healthy or imbalanced emanations of the person's glands and other organs. This process was analogous to that of a MRI diagnostic scanner, but I was sensing the individual's mental, emotional and soul-psychic-memory vibrations, as well as the physical ones.

When all the input was gathered within me and relayed to the wisdom-judgment-justice throne in my cerebral computer, a diagnostic judgment was made and a treatment planned was prepared. This healing prescription was transferred from my wisdom throne in my right temporal lobe to my upraised left hand, in the palm of which was a small third-eye, such as Hindus depict in healers' hands. From here, the new image for the person's healing was broadcast to his/her auric field, which in time he/she would absorb, integrate and eventually outpicture. The left hand indicated the spiritualized soul, intuitive, subconscious level, and the healing of the person's soul record or book of life. The healing treatment had not been made by my conscious analysis so it was not limited or self-righteous. Rather, the prescription was the righteous judgment, wisdom, justice and grace of my I Am Self in oneness with the other person's I Am Self.

Visualization: Be still and know that the Green Garden of God's Grace is within, around and flowing through you. Affirm: I am a healer for the Hierarchy, which is composed of archangels and ascended masters who guide all on Earth. Wrap yourself in a green robe, whose healing and balancing power permeate your every thought, feeling, memory and physical cell. Be green. Be harmonious. Be in the good grace of our Father-Mother Creator who welcomes you into His-Her throne of love and wisdom-judgment-justice.

When you feel centered, ask Spirit to show you someone whom you are to serve as a wise and loving channel of healing. Let this person show up in your mind's eye or feel his/her presence in your heart/thymus. Once identified, see him/her standing a few feet before you. When prompted from within, with your right hand and arm, extend your green robe around this individual, such that both of you are enclosed within it. Merge together, I Am Self to I Am Self. With wisdom-justice-judgment, by way of your pituitary and all other major endocrine glands, intuitively sense the harmony or imbalance in every part of this individual. Maybe you see colors to indicate this.

Maybe the still small voice within you gives you diagnostic impressions. Maybe clairsentiently you simply know what is out of order – it is clear as a bell.

Then, ask Spirit to provide the healing formula, prescription or treatment to bring balance to this person's mind, soul and body. When this prescription gels within your wisdom-judgment-justice throne in the temporal lobe of your cerebrum, let it be communicated to your raised left, opened hand. From out of its palm comes just the right healing vibration, feeling, image, power or energy, which goes into the aura of the person before you. It may be something specific or something as basic as love and forgiveness. When the transmission is complete, give thanks unto Spirit. Open your robe, release the person from its enclosure, and rewrap the robe around you. Let go and let God bring about the healing in His-Her time and way. So be it.
