

144,000: 37 – Picture Power in Peru

A couple years ago, by way of my imagination/thalamus, I dreamt that I was in the Andes Mountains in South America in an area that looked like the region of Lake Titicaca (which is 12,500 feet above sea level) in southwestern Peru (see map below). Walking through a green meadow of vibrant grass, I entered a modern international conference center where I gave a workshop about birthing the light body and its 12 powers. About 144 light workers from countries around the world had come to hear me and others speak. Using my laptop computer and a projector, I presented a slide show of images that helped to illustrate my well-received talk, in which I emphasized the power of imagination.

Upon awakening and for months thereafter, I had little understanding of the meaning and interpretation of this dream. It was not until last year when the guidance came to devote my blog in 2009 to the 12 powers, 12 corresponding power centers in the world, and linking with 12,000 elect in each of these centers that the key to this dream became clear: Peru and the surrounding countries of Ecuador, Bolivia and Chile can be seen as the imagination power center for the world. In this focus, a minimum of 12,000 I Am Nation citizens/elect receive and broadcast new I Am images to the whole planet for its healing and upliftment.

Mountains represent an elevated state of consciousness. In Sananda's lifetime as Moses, he climbed Mt. Sinai where he received the Ten Commandments; when he descended, his face shown with light. In his later incarnation as Jesus, he took Peter (faith), John (love) and James (wisdom) up the mount where he was transfigured by his I Am Self and light body – his face and clothes radiated light as from the sun and a celestial voice was heard to say, "This is my Son in whom I Am well pleased." Jesus was such a master of his imagination doorway that he created and projected images of his past lives as Moses and Elijah, which were so lifelike that Peter thought they were physical and suggested that tents be built for them.

The power of imagination functions on the positive, active, masculine polarity, whereas its counterpart of understanding expresses on the passive, receptive, feminine polarity. Being on the positive polarity is another reason why we can think of imagination as being located in Peru and nearby nations in the Western Hemisphere.

For about a hundred years in the 1400s and 1500s, the Inca Empire that stretched the length of the Andes was centered in Cuzco, Peru, where they erected their Temple of the Sun. The Incas worshipped the sun as a symbol of God, whose light shines on, and gives life to, all of us. When our I Am or Son Self transfigures us via our all-seeing eye, we receive new Christ ideas and I Am images that lift us to higher peaks of I Am beingness. To climb up the mountain to cosmic consciousness, we see and be. On the mountain top, one with God, our focus shifts: We be and see. In I Am beingness, we receive new I Am images that we project to heal humanity, just as in my dream I broadcast images from my laptop computer and a projector onto a screen.

See and Be: See yourself in a pyramid of light that is your fourth-dimensional light body; it has transfigured over your third-dimensional physical form. This pyramid is like the one that is pictured on the back side of a US dollar bill. Call upon Spirit to lift you from the base of the pyramid to its apex or capstone that is a foot or two above your head. Think of this journey as climbing up your spine, with each vertebra representing a new plateau in your mountain ascent. As you rise in consciousness, your thoughts become more rarified and filled with the light of Spirit. Your conscious, mortal thoughts drop away, and then you travel up and through the subtler realms of your subconscious mind or soul. Finally, you enter into the inner chamber of the capstone. This is the all-seeing or cosmic eye of your light body. Like in the picture, it is filled with light. Be in this light. Perceive that you are of this light. Be your Self, the radiant child of God that you are. Be.

Be and See: Be in the Andes Mountains about 12,000 feet above sea level. It is not so much that you imagine and project yourself there. Rather, in I Am beingness, you perceive that you are there and so you are. In your light body in Christ consciousness, there is no separation, no distance to travel, no here and there. Rather, one with God, you are one with life everywhere on and around the planet. Have faith that you are in Peru, and you are there in your light body.

Link with the 12,000 elect in Peru and the surrounding Andean countries of Ecuador, Bolivia and Chile. They are of every race, religion, age, profession, ethnic group and place, whether in the mountains, the cities on the coast like Lima, or in the Amazon Rainforest that makes up 60 percent of Peru. From your central location near Cuzco, Machu Picchu and Lake Titicaca, near the headwaters of the Amazon River, you are one with the 12,000. Be with the Christ in them. Sense their wholeness and holiness as equal, unique sons and daughters of the Sun/Spirit/God.

Be with 144,000 I Am Nation citizens worldwide. You are with them and they are with you, all in your all-seeing, cosmic eye, which is of the eye of God. By your faith in your harmonious image of them, they are healed. Expand your focus to all souls on Earth, saying to them: Be healed!
